National Security Integrators Targets National Market, Plans To Display at ASIS in September 2005

National Security Integrators (NSI), a group of privately held security integrators, is pleased to announce that it plans to display for the first time at the ASIS Exhibition in Orlando Florida in September of this year. NSI will have a 10'x20' booth that will be fully staffed by its members and associates. The booth number will be 4861, adjacent to CI3 Software. The theme for NSI's first ASIS Exhibition will be "NSI: Your One-Stop Source for Integrated Software House Solutions in North America."

According to Alan Kruglak, President of NSI, "The reason for displaying at ASIS is very simple. Based on the experience of our members, the market is clearly looking for alternatives for one-stop solutions to the large mega-integrators. By providing top-notch service and response, we are revolutionizing the way business is done with regards to security integration."

When asked why NSI's emphasis is on Software House solutions, Mr. Kruglak responded, "Every member in NSI must be a Software House dealer. Not only is it our common shared platform, Software House is a great partner for our group. Like every manufacturer, they are looking for strong loyal distribution of their products. And like every integrator, we are looking for a dependable vendor that values our business. That's what Software House brings to the table us."
